CHICAGO, May 31 .- The interest in the Cronin case was partially eclipsed to-day by the sensation created by the announce ment of the return to Chicago of Wm. J. here are preparing for a flood of over twen-y feet.

McGarigle, warden of the county hospital and general agent of the famous County county boodle gang. The history of this case and of McGarigle's sensational escape from the custody of Sheriff Matson and the subsequent chase into Canada needs no Shepard's branch of the county court, accompanied by State's Attorney Longe-necker, Attorney Adams, J. Lehman and James Fitzsimmons, the latter two being McGarigle's bondsmen. Court officials and policemen waiting to give evidence in criminal cases stared in amazement at the sight of the man who has been so long a fugitive in Canada. The court immediatly between the state's attorney and the coursel for the defendant in view of the recen of the county hospital, and brother of Mike McDonald, the well-known political boss, a new trial. In view of that decision it had been agreed that a new trial shall be granted McGarigle: that he should enter a please of guilting the should enter a guilting t escaped to Canada, was the best that could be done. As to McDonald, he had served eighteen months in jail and suffered more than McGarigle. The difficulties in the way of a successful prosecution of a new trial were insuperable; he therefore moved that a noile prosequi be entered as to him. The ordefs were made by the court, and while the clerk was figuring up the costs, McGarigle and his friends retired to the gaper twenty-three indictments against him. It was on one of these, the one under which he ond McDonald were tried, that he was fined. The other twenty-two were stricken off The costs of the trial and those resulting from the forfeiture of bonds.
